

The God-Emperor of Mankind

There are no good guys. The Imperium is a fascist, theocratic, genocidal dystopia—and this grotesqueness is by design.

The Horus Heresy

How the galaxy was permanently broken in a single afternoon.

Corrupted by Chaos.
Betrayed his father.

The killing blow that doomed humanity to 10,000 years of fanaticism.

Every tragedy in the 41st millennium traces back to this civil war.
Chaos cannot be defeated structurally, because Chaos feeds on emotion.

The Fall of Cadia

10,000 years of stalemate, finally shattered.

Imperium Sanctus

The half with the Emperor's guiding light
(The Astronomican).
Barely surviving.

わア!!!

Imperium Nihilus

The half cut off by the Great Rift. Navigating in the dark. Literally the gates of Hell.

Abaddon's 13th Crusade didn't just break a fortress planet;
it ripped a wound in reality itself, physically splitting the empire in two.

The Return of the Primarch

Wakes up after 10,000 years
in stasis.

Finds his rationalist empire turned into a superstitious,
corpse-worshipping
nightmare.

Resurrected
through forbidden alien magic and a death-god.

The brightest moment in modern 40K is just a competent administrator realizing he cannot fix anything—he can only delay the extinction.

Why The War Never Ends

Chaos: Incapable of coordinated victory.
(Division is their nature).

Tyrannids: Cannot be reasoned with.
(Everything is food).

Orks: Grow stronger the more you fight them.
(War is their biology).

Humanity:
Genocide is state religion.
(Peace is heresy).

In the grim darkness of the far future, there is only war.
It is not a warning. It is a description of physics.
